JOB HUNTERS

Sally was a typist,
Very swift at banging.
But Sally didn't get the job,
Because her slip was hanging.

Bob was an accountant,
At figures quite a shark.
But Bob, instead of standing up,
Looked like a ? mark.

Georgie was an actor;
No lines he couldn't speak . . .
Georgie didn't get the part—
His handshake was too weak.

Anne has sales ability
That's always sure to win.
But Annie couldn't stand the strain—
She was only bones and skin.

Billy was an agent
Who went from door to door—
They couldn't catch what Billie said,
So Billy sells no more.

Florence, a stenographer,
Was chewing at dictation.
Her boss, annoyed at smacking sounds,
Gave her—a long vacation.

Jacqueline, a model,
A lovely girl with glamor,
Was so afraid to meet the boss
That she could only stammer.

These people learned their lesson
The very hardest way—
So try to learn from their mistakes—
It's almost sure to pay.

Shirley Parker

HELPFUL HINTS

We students, with the future before us, all want to make our lives something to be proud of—we desire to tread the path of life that has good fortune at every bend of the road. This word success . . . everyone has a different interpretation of the word, but to the average student, a respected well-paid position is his idea of succeeding in this world.

For all professions and all types of manual labor, it is necessary to have certain technical qualifications, but have you ever considered that technical skill alone will not realize your dreams and hopes? There is another factor necessary for success . . . your PERSONAL APPEARANCE. Some of you will probably comment that no one has ever complained of your appearance, but you should recall the old adage—"Flattery is monstrous in your friends". If you find that your personal appearance is not up to par, do something about it: don't stand idly by and watch the other fellow steal your job from you. Frankly, are you guilty of some of the following items? If you are, correct them, for it is then, and then only, that you have a chance of finding the path of life on which you wish to journey.

One of the physical requisites necessary for impressing an employer is your POSTURE. Although few of us realize it, our posture reveals character and degree of confidence. The fellow who is bent over, his head drooped, his eyes cast down—the one who always seems to blend in with the shadows, impresses you as a person not confident of himself—a man with an inferior complex and dejected disposition. If, on the other hand, you see a young man or woman walking with a firm tread, shoulders erect, head thrust back, eyes looking straight ahead, and arms swinging, how much more we notice that person! Confidence, alertness, and ability seem a part of such an individual.

Even those with the ideal posture, however, have failed in securing a position, because of crazy-quilt shirts, gaudy dresses, and untidy hair. Yes, next to posture, you must be certain of the NEATNESS OF YOUR APPEARANCE. To you, Sally Smith, we say—be sure that your hair is arranged neatly and suitably; that your hands are cleaner than clean; that your nails are well manicured. Oh, if you could only realize how an employer winces at the sight of an approaching mademoiselle who resembles a painted clown. No, if you want that job, Sally, resort to light polish and conservative makeup.

And now, we breeze forth with advice to all the John Smiths. Be sure that you're well-groomed. Are you a jitterbug? Don't dress like one. When you apply for a job, wear a dark business suit, and if you're one of those men who feels uncomfortable in a vest, make certain that your coat is buttoned. See that your tie harmonizes with your suit; that your shirt is spotless.

And now Johnny and Sally, to you both we say this, be sure that your clothes are in good taste. Remember that fitting accessories are very important for they make an outfit look complete.

OFF TO WORK

Will you be looking for a job soon? Then perhaps you may be interested in knowing something about jobs open to you in your favored field, and just what qualifications you must possess in order to be hired and not fired.

Your opportunities for getting a good position are much better if you've completed a high school education. A good scholastic standing means a great deal to the job hunter.

Regardless of which type of position you intend to seek, an application letter will be necessary. Type it if possible—and make NO errors. See that it is brief and clear. Present facts, not opinions. Often an application in outline form is preferred, because it is most easily read.

In addition to the letter of application, many firms require a personal interview with the applicant. BE ON TIME for it! Be at your best. Remember that often you are accepted or rejected in that first minute of the interview. Whether in the application blank or in the interview, tell the truth about references and high school records. Many firms check them.

Besides these general hints, specific ones were obtained by our staff members who contacted a number of business houses. Those of our graduates who aim for typing jobs must be able to type a minimum of fifty words a minute, with less than five errors. Prospective stenographers should be prepared to take dictation at about one hundred twenty-five words per minute.

Many typists are turning to another field which has grown more and more important in this mechanical age—that of office machine operation. Because mechanical devices save time and money in an office, an efficient operator of one of them may expect to be well paid. A number of firms hire high school graduates with good records in commercial courses, and train them to work these machines. Other companies require that their operators have had a training period in a school which gives instruction in the running of business machines. Some of the mechanical aids gaining increasing favor are comptometers, dictating, book-keeping, and various mathematical machines.

The personnel manager of a large department store informed us that to be hired as a clerk, one must have a fundamental knowledge of arithmetic, and the ability to speak distinctly. One must learn to be tactful, alert, and helpful with customers. Since many stores desire that applicants have had experience, students who work during vacations at neighborhood stores have an advantage.

Jobs open to high school graduates in mail order houses are those of messenger, clerical worker, comptometer operator, typist and junior correspondent. Retaining one of these positions, or advancing to a higher and better paid one, depends upon the ability of the employee.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council is one of the most active organizations in the school, as well as one of the oldest. It is composed of fifty-six members, one representative from each division room, who are elected by popular vote. The officers of the Council, president, vice-president, and the secretary, together with the chairmen of the Attendance, Deportment, Building and Grounds, and the Activities Committees, constitute the Board of Directors. The purpose of the Student Council is to promote a fine school spirit by giving all its members a chance to participate in activities which develop leadership and good fellowship among the students, and between students and faculty. Through the exercise of such procedure, the students should develop a fine sense of civic and social responsibility toward the school and the community. Regular meetings of the organization are held on the first and third Tuesday of the school month.

LEGION OF HONOR

LIBRARY STAFF

The Library Staff is composed of approximately fifty members who were chosen by Miss Poltrock from a recommended group. Through their service as librarians they gain knowledge which can be used in the future. The student librarian develops tact and understanding through contact with other pupils. These qualities are useful in any future work the individual may choose. The knowledge acquired from working among books in the library is something to be treasured and used for the rest of the student's life. Most important of all is the fact that if a girl wants to follow a library career she has gained a priceless background from this high school training.

The club is sponsored by Miss Poltrock and her assistant, Mrs. Chambers. The officers of the club are Rosemary McGinn, president, Ruth Goodyear, vice-president, Helen Nelson, secretary, Velma Ernst, corresponding secretary, and Wilma Thorsen, treasurer.

Meet the Legion of Honor! They are the outstanding citizens of our student body. Each semester scoring sheets are issued to all students above 9B desiring to become members of the Legion. On these sheets, points are awarded for participation in each school activity, and service to the school, as well as for scholarship.

This group of "mental stalwarts" selected each semester from the student body of Kelvyn Park performs many types of service for the school. One of the responsibilities of the Legion of Honor is to acquaint incoming Freshmen with the many phases of Kelvyn's student activities. Freshmen tours around the school are conducted by Legion members and each semester an assembly is presented introducing to Freshmen various clubs and activities of the school.

The Legion of Honor, under the competent sponsorship of Mr. Lederer, also administers Kelvyn's Safety Program. It takes charge of the distribution of safety literature to all students, sponsors safety assemblies and studies various safety problems in and around the school building.

K E L V Y N

We have seen a school year pass by. A year crammed to overflowing with assemblies, sports, graduation, and special events. We have seen old faces go . . . and we have missed them; we have seen new faces come . . . and we have welcomed them. We have seen a year of life pass by . . . and it was good.

Looking back over the past two semesters, we find ourselves silently wondering if ever again we shall witness scenes equal to the quickly-moving panorama of this school year. Our thoughts wander back to the highlights; we smile at the remembrance of happy hours spent at the school dances—they were such fun!—the wild delirium with which we greeted the football, basketball, and baseball seasons—assemblies participated in—club activities—the joy of work well done.

The traditional freshman assembly, given on October 11 by the Legion of Honor to acquaint the freshies with Kelvyn's extra-curricular activities, was among the first of the year—a performance well worth remembering.

October 17: Open House. Remember how we all wished we were freshies so that we might be excused from class to accompany our parents on their tour through the school?

On October 27 we rolled in the aisles laughing at the predicament of several boys who followed their first impulses in a preliminary Hallowe'en celebration. The play "Easy Does It" was the cause for all the merriment.

Do you know the story behind Abbott's famous paintings in the assembly hall? If not, you should have been present when the story of Sir Galahad's search for the Holy Grail was explained to an interested audience on November 1.

Comes that hilarious day every semester when the school shakes with laughter at the antics of the future "K" boys during their initiation. November 3 saw the halls sheltering weird, embarrassed-looking creatures (they called themselves boys) wearing dresses and behaving quite strangely. What some boys won't do for a "K"!

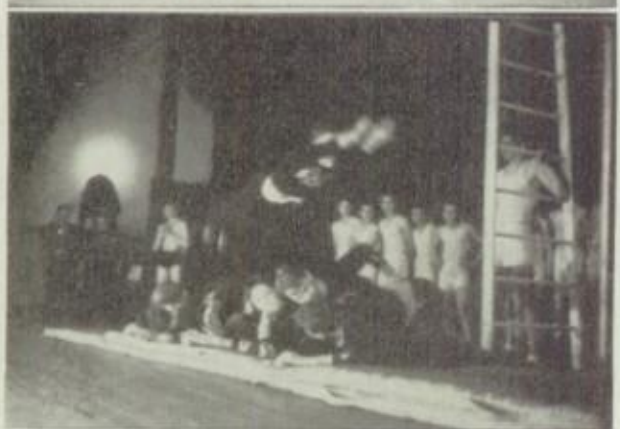

In the distance a bugle playing taps . . . the bowed head of a veteran soldier . . . We wonder if ever again we shall witness such an impressive, inspiring assembly as the one presented November 10 by Miss Nelson's United States History Class. This Armistice Day program, stressing the ideals of peace, emphasized the close association between peace and the American ideal of democracy. Preceding the Armistice Day assembly was a series of six colorful tableaux presented November 8, under the direction of Mrs. Nordman.

Towering far above the assemblies of the year in popularity was the annual Home Talent Show given November 21. With that able master of ceremonies, Louis Manning, the show provided entertainment for all and netted $115.56 for the School Children's Aid.

The Masque and Make-Up Club appeared once more before the footlights, as it came up with two fine performances on December 8: "Junior's Moustache" and "Luncheon for Six". After attending these performances we couldn't see Harold Sheridan without imagining him brushing his upper lip for the appearance of a few hairs. Could you?

With banners flying overhead, drum majorettes strutting down the avenue, our feet trying bravely to keep time with the band, we witnessed, on December 10, the memorable opening of the Wrightwood Avenue viaduct—the project to make the streets safer for our students . . . And, following the parade, the excitement of a Sunday program presented in the school auditorium . . .

The solemnity of the Washington Oratorical Contest. Joseph Pisciotto, winner, well deserved that honor with his stirring address, "If the World Is to Have Peace, We Must Have Truth". James Cubbidge, second place winner, delivered "Preserving Our Democracy". The other participants who held our interest were Gale Waggoner, Kenneth Raab, Betty Hansen, and Christ Nielsen.

H I - L I G H T S

If you were one of the girls who didn't attend the G. A. A. "Freshie Mixer" on December 13, you missed seeing a Santa Claus who had blond curls. The main interest (besides the cake and ice cream, of course!) was a ten-cent grab bag with Santa Claus, alias Betty Ovresat, handing out the gifts.

Turning back the leaves of the past year, we pause at the chapter headed "Athletics". We look back upon the football season and see such players as Ed Levin, Marty Narbo, Henry Bauer, Charles Popp, Bob De Wyze, and William Formusa out on the gridiron fighting gamely to get the pigskin over the line for dear old K. P. High. We live again the thrilling moments when, on November 4, the Panthers trounced the McKinley eleven 6-0, and on November 11, when they again triumphed, beating Foreman 7-0.

The basketball season, always looked forward to eagerly by Kelvyn students, saw the Panther team march into each game with the will to win. It saw them play "heads-up" ball throughout the season, and lose some heartbreaking games by one-point scores. With the close of the season, some of Kelvyn's finest cagers—Bernard Berk, Robert Schmidt, James Zavila, Howard Sellke, and Arealdo Rende, all January '40 graduates—played their last game for us.

On the gridiron, the baseball diamond, the basketball and tennis courts, in the swimming pool and bowling alley, Kelvyn has strung up a creditable number of victories of which she can well be proud.

Strains of music drifting out of the gymnasium doors, and with it coming the exuberant chatter of happy young people. Familiar? Of course! It's the regular Friday evening dance, sponsored by the Board of Education. Kelvyn has certainly had its share of dances this past year! The "Kelvyn Life" affair, given free to all its subscribers, was the first of the year. Then followed dances we won't forget: the "Get-Acquainted" dance, French Barn dance, Harvest Hop, the "K" Klub football dance, and the Hatchet Swing.

What a huge success the Spring Festival on March 15 turned out to be! "The Teacher's Nightmare in the Daytime", or "It Can't Happen Here", a highly hilarious play given by the teachers, kept us in continual laughter. Wasn't it fun to see them performing for once instead of us? The Masque and Make-Up Club presented "The Sign of the Four", a Sherlock Holmes story, with Phil Izenman portraying the great fiction detective. Add music, singing, special readings, and comic acts to the two dramatic performances and you have a wonderful night of laughs and entertainment.

Clean-cut, athletic-minded boys became members of the "K" Klub when they received the coveted "K's" for their ability in certain fields of sport at an assembly March 28.

Peace was the theme of Mrs. Luken's Memorial Day assembly on May 29. The principle set forth could well be observed in this war-troubled world.

The annual "K" Klub banquet will roll around again in June. It is always looked forward to eagerly by "K" Klub members, its alumni, by fathers and teachers.

Though we can touch but lightly the pages of the closed volume, though we may be forced to look forward to new fields of endeavor, may we never forget the great things . . . and the little things which make up this thing called School. May we ever hold in happy remembrance our years at Kelvyn Park High.

We will see new years come, and we will welcome them with the robust spirit of youth. But they cannot overshadow the brilliancy of the past year. It will not be forgotten . . . no, not by Kelvyn students, for it was a year too great to be forgotten.

US PHYSICISTS • AND CHEMISTS

There is a period every day
When I my wisdom doubt.
My mind's a blank, and I don't know
Just what it's all about.

Bells, and keys, and batteries
Go whizzing quickly by—
And then I find an extra screw
That I look at with a sigh.

It's shameful and bewildering
When the answers we don't know.
Our teacher thinks we're awfully dumb,
And—perhaps it's so.

There's Florence Lev who seems to know
Just what she ought to do;
And Gloria, her partner,
Who helps her sometimes, too.

A carefree twosome we have here.
They're Izenman and Licht.
How wide their scope of knowledge is
I simply can't depict.

Renowned are Kaitchuck and Ed Kurk—
For their work as right hand men
To Mr. Caird, who's "bothered" them
Time and time again.

Were it not for Marianne
Our day would be quite dull,
For she laughs at almost anything
And helps to break the lull.

There's Herman Burk who knows his oats
(One of the very few)
And Mike, the one "connector up"
Who shows he's able, too.

Oh yes, we have within our ranks
A first rate sound technician,
Who deciphers well 'tween noise and sound
Which shows she's a musician.

Tom and Harold seem to like
The smell of toasted wire.
From what I've gathered of their kind
They'd sure enjoy a fire.

Drimall, McGinn, and Laib have we
To tell us that we're bright.
They ask us where we'd put the wires
In case we'd want a light.

Can I hear the loud protests
Of those I did not mention?
Rather than to be abused
They'd put in their declension.

Did I slip up on Mr. Caird?
Now that's indeed a shame.
For as a physicist, you see
There's power in that name.

He tells us things from cave man stuff
To that of "densest" style.
Some seem engrossed beyond compare
And others sit and smile.

Although he loads us down with work
We're going to miss his ways,
His chalk, his robes, experiments,
And even those lab days.

When you hear us talk of H_2O ,
Or Pb and Fe,
It's not the latest in "code finds,"
But chemistry, you see.

And when we speak of elements
I wish you'd bear in mind
They're not grey things with long trunks,
But building blocks, you'll find.

A compound's not a medicine,
Nor mercury degrees,
And if the air gets cold enough
It's really bound to freeze.

A funnel isn't meant for milk
Or to pour water down,
Nor is a graduated cylinder
A vase with cap and gown.

"S" doesn't mean superior,
Nor "MP" mighty poor,
But they just stand for chemicals.
Now this you know, I'm sure.

When you're half through you realize
That without much ado
You have burnt fingers, broken glass,
And dirty test tubes, too.

You spill all kinds of harmful things;
Your beakers don't endure;
And if that egg smell gets you down
Fresh air will be the cure.

So bring your clothes pins and your smocks,
And your best set of wits;
And don't forget a strong physique
Or you'll be blown to bits.

We love her for her smile, her look, her way.

FLORENCE LEV—"Flo"—"K" Klub, G. A. A., Vice-President of Math Club, French Club, Dramatic Club, Public Speaking Club, Hall Guard Captain, Kewynan Literary Business Staff, Pan-American Club, Teacher's Assistant, Games Class. Ambition: To be a bacteriologist.
*She is pretty to walk with and witty to talk with
And charming the whole day thru.*

ARTHUR LICHT—"Art"—"K" Klub, Basketball Team, Intramural Basketball and Baseball, Civics Club Vice-President, Math Club Secretary, Clean-up Campaign, Hall Guard. Ambition: To be a movie operator.
In sports and their goals men are known.

BEVERLY LINCOLN—"Bev"—Legion of Honor, Math Club, French Club, G. A. A., Band, Orchestra, Boys' Glee Club Accompanist, Mixed Chorus, Hall Guard, 3½ Year Graduate. Ambition: To be a teacher.
Otium cum dignitate.

CHESTER LITWIN—"Ches"—Hall Guard, Clean-up Campaign. Ambition: To become a pharmacist.
Wisdom is often twins to silence.

ELAINE LOMBARD—"Elle"—G. A. A., Math Club, Choral Club, German Club, Spring Festival, Dramatic Club, Home Talent Show, City Music Festival. Ambition: To get a theatrical or radio job.
A smiling face, an open heart, will always be Elaine's part.

OLE LYSE—Civics Club President.
Never speak when silence can be had.

ELLEN MALINA—G. A. A., Commercial Club, Bookkeeping Club, Games Class, Hall Guard, Office Assistant. Ambition: To be a model or an office worker.
In her tongue is the law of kindness.

JUNE MALMSTEN—G. A. A., Pan-American Club, Hall Guard. Ambition: To become a school teacher.
A quiet manner hid the mischief in her eyes so blue.

HAROLD MARKOS—"Turtle"—Hall Guard.
School . . .? What cannot be cured must be endured.

ROSEMARY MCGINN—Library Assistant, Library Club Vice-President, Lunch-room Guard. Ambition: To be a nurse.
*She's here, she's there, she's all about
Lots of pep and a real good scout.*

DID YOU SAY JOB?

by MILDRED BERG

Greetings! all you cute career girls, you bustling business men, you lazy loafers. Just glue your eyes to this column for a bit of fancy foolery about vital vocational voodoo. Dis am hot off granpaw's crickety press, an' rarin' to go!

Let's start the ball rolling with Sidney Garber and Mel Pippenburg, who say, "'My Day' will consist of baseball, baseball, BASEBALL!" (Excuse us, Eleanor.) Woe to the windows these kids are gonna break. A very different vocation from baseball—social service work—was chosen by Seymour Faermak and Marilyn Doherty. Faermak says his reason is that there are very few men in this field, but your reporter just dug out the real dope—he's after the girls for himself, as usual.

Since the fine old age of eight years, Estelle Zoghlin says it's surgery she's after. We all better be her friends for life. Ed Merdinger, who doesn't like cutting—even his classes—and Betty Piehl want to be doctors. Wherever you see bugs, or am I using the wrong term, you find George Allison, Martha Shapiro, and Phyllis Falstein. They're specializing in—ugh! bacteriology. Nurses seem to crowd medicine. Ingrid Larsen, Lynette Nielson, Elizabeth Maish, and Grace Hamlin are definitely set on becoming the worshippers of Nightingale, Barton, and Cavell. Miss Maish is the little miss who says she would rather be a girl with a career than a girl with a husband. The final entrée is a deluxe super-special male nurse, William Larson. Why one man would ever want to hold another's hand and coo sweet, encouraging, love-coated words to him, is beyond me. Edward Jensen and Bernard Pinsky are going to mix remedies for what ails you. There was a dentist around somewhere. Let's see, dentist, dentist, where'd I put that dentist? Hm-m-m, here's a blackjack. In my business they either hand over the jack, or I make it black for them. Bottle of invisible ink. Use it when I sign my name to a bouncing check. Address of Cousin Mortimer, residing in the zoo, at present, and, ah, yes, a ticket for a long whiskey. Well, well, imagine that, here's the dentist. Her name's Elsie Orum. Men, men, wherefore art thou that thou shouldst allow a mere woman to build thy bridges?

Say, look who's peeking out from behind those aeroplane wings! Seems it's oil-covered John Bjornson and Joe Quateman, new aeronautical engineers. Guess Erich Busch, Howard Hall, and Jim Schell are gonna fly the three best planes in the airport. These fellows can weather any storm—even a storm of girls. How would you like them served for breakfast with cream and sugar, femmes! (Even without sugar.) Shirley Munsen and Jerry Bauer, can you picture 'em, will be air stewardesses.

Engineering is going to grab many of our sturdy specimens. Civil engineering for Leonard Schilling and Ray Gunkel; chemical engineering for James Cubbidge, and Calvin Agger; and electrical engineering for John Kelly, Howard Stewart, and Joseph Rhea.

We now come to a field dealing with torture, and I don't mean a Biology Quiz! I'm referring to beauty culture. They call it beauty, but how Edgar would run if he could see his best girl getting a permanent wave. Arlyne Gitzke, Alladine Blask, and Lorraine Kuczkowski prefer the roles of torturers.

Lorraine Harding wants to sing popular songs over the radio, and even if her public can stand it, the neighbors can't. Concert and light opera for Janette Taylor and Doreen Merritt. These little birds can sing, but of course, that's only one man's opinion. (Remember, girls, it's all in fun.) Louis Fischer writes a long, long story all about doing radio accompanying, playing classical and popular music, about station WGN, about harmony, composing, and orchestras—and titles it "My Profession". Oh, the irony of mortals!

Kelvyn has always been outstanding in art and its many branches. Dotty Mueller dotes on fashion illustrating, and Betty Rasmussen on window designing. Leland Wahl, a fellow who has made a great start, has chosen to be a cartoonist. Look over your Kelvynian and you'll see many of his sketches. Oh, and girls, your 1950 dresses will be, whether you like it or not, a direct design of either Mary Vitale, Doris Figved, or Darline Karl, who will fit them to the slinky figures of models Dorothy Olsen and Yvonne Mallack. The names sound good, but what'll the dresses be like? Jeanne Burgess and Virginia Zeller plan to be real honest-t'-goodness artists, with temperament and all. Next time you read about Gulch's Gullible Grepsies, that "make you wanna eat" food with the true, tempting, tangy taste, remember it's only Kenny Gilbertson spinning a yarn, and twisting plain American words into demons of crazy, complex combinations—privileges of commercial artists, you know.

Vera Ladevick and Jean Crowley are standing by comptometry. Two of the bookkeepers within our midst are Beverly Parison and Arthur Langner. Langner craves for a responsible position, and believe me, he didn't pick a lemon. Dorothy Erikson, Josephine Vercruysse, and Shirley Reinhardt want to do stenographic work. Shirley also has a secret ambition to sing "not opera or jazz, but just music for people to dance to." (Keep right on trying, Shir, like I am to write this column.) Marian Florio and Stella Paicz wish secretarial occupations. For June Waser nothing will do but "private secretary to the Boss."

Came across a funny one:—Victor Jensen wants to be a baker. Gad! my figure! Walked up to a scale the other day. The scale looked at me, then at itself, and said, "Lady, you don't need a scale, the circus needs YOU!"

What we all need is Jimmy Erdevig, who is set on journalism as a profession, and John Singer, who wishes to be a sports writer, simply because he likes it! Dorris Johnson wants to write, also, but she chooses the classics.

Europe, at present, is no place for little Gwen Bell and Grace Olsen to be. However, maybe by the time they fulfill their wish of becoming foreign correspondents, the shattered pieces that are Europe will have been picked up and pasted together again.

Milton Wigutow and Calvin Lichtenwalter plan on a chemistry profession. Lichtenwalter has a position awaiting him at the experimental laboratory in the Wright Instrumental Company of Lima, Ohio. Kind of surprised us all, didn't he?

Robert Kimberley and Ed Thorsen intend to study law. Kimberley says (jot this down along with your other Shakespearean and Confucius savings): "I will try my best to get a job, probably in a lawyer's office, possibly on the W.P.A. Such is the life of a human!" Dorothy Koch and Evelynne Jacobsen intend to be court reporters.

Bud Sheridan and Betty Jones will go forth to the greater art of drama, and from what Sheridan says, he expects to make money.

June Trachtenberg's got it in for crabby school-marms and wants none of it for herself. When she teaches, she will use progressive ideas, and don't we all need 'em? Robert Hayward wants to teach music and history. There are also those double-decker brains of future math teachers, Constance Noll and Mary Murphree. Marion Bender has chosen home arts as her field, and Bernadine Johnson and Betty Ratzer, the kindergarten line. Alice Weimer and Virginia Neumann are going to teach professional dancing.

Three butchers coming up—Stash "Chopem" Banach, Norman "Slicem" Tonge, and Arne "Weighem" Sorensen. Believe me, the way some of these fellows butcher up their report books with red, well—(meaning no offense, boys).

Here are a few crazy careers: Edward Potenza, farmer; Ralph Gruber, great delicatessen chain-store magnate; Hank Venell, on your heels as a detective; Evelyn Kaplan, voice for Donald Duck—and she's good; Richard Grosskopf, insurance man; Sam Vitale, tailor; ha! Leo Bush, barber; Gladys Cousineau, veterinarian;

Shirley Parker giving the once-over to the Aztecs and Mayas of Mexico, as an archaeologist; and Betty Ovresat, undertaker—for my dead body when every one finishes reading this column.

Being firmly convinced of numerous philosophical tendencies in some Kelvyn students, I present to you Richard Bellgardt's contribution. "The reason I might join the navy is—I think I would have a hard time finding a job, and if I did find one, it probably would pay so little that I should be better off in the navy." See? Harold Hinze and Carlton Prindeville also will don navy attire. Of course, where there's navy there's army. And John Lang is so firm in his declaration of the fact that he intends to join, that he said, "Yes. I plan to join the United States Army. Yes."

Well, kids, this about winds everything up. Want you to know it's all in fun and fun for all. So, à bientôt, auf wiedersehen, here's wishing you many pleasant dreams.

THE SECRETARIAL CLUB

These thirty-seven attractive young ladies and one handsome gentleman make up the Secretarial Club. The club is a service organization, which is composed of fully trained stenographers and typists. They have been doing work for the faculty for the entire semester, and have completed 180 assignments. Some of them served as secretaries for a period of one month, while the rest worked as office assistants, or did other typing and mimeographing.

This group is divided into fourteen committees, with each student assigned to a particular duty such as filing, rating, proof reading, and other necessary work. The members chose Marjorie Keller as president, Laurretta Schultz, secretary, and Tom Kurtzer (our male member) as treasurer. The club meets daily in room 301, under the sponsorship of Miss E. H. Sidenberg.

Nice club . . . Anyway, that's what I keep telling them down at the office.

Dorothy Peterson

The membership of the Art Club is composed, primarily, of students who are majoring in art and plan to follow it as a vocation. The Art Department affords them a special opportunity to experiment with processes and techniques that appeal to them. The importance of art as a leading interest has resulted in the support of many school activities throughout the year. Some of the art work promotions and their contributions were: the various school subscription drives, the opening of the Wrightwood Avenue viaduct, the Safety Campaign, the Clean-up Campaign, and the Milk Drive. Stage posters and scenery are other examples of the club's willingness to cooperate when possible.

In the commercial field, art work is necessary to many industries. It is of course chiefly used in advertising and designing. In the future, the Art Club looks forward with interest to bigger and better progress.

THE ART CLUB

PLACEMENT COUNSELOR

Though there are thousands of unemployed youth, there are still many opportunities for those students who possess special skills and abilities. Early this year the Board of Education appointed placement counselors in each school. Mr. Barth was appointed to that position for our students. The counselors all agree that a high school education is an important asset for promotion.

It is the duty of the counselor to inform all graduating seniors and students over sixteen who wish to check out of school about the many agencies in Chicago who are willing to help them secure a position. In the interview he studies the characteristics of the student and by finding out his likes and dislikes, his grades, and his ambitions, he can usually find a position which is suited to him.

In the placement office there are various types of literature to help the student seeking work. There are lists of all professional, commercial, art and trade schools in the city of Chicago. There are also pamphlets and bulletins pertaining to colleges and universities in this vicinity.

The counselor is always at the service of any student who desires help or advice. If employers call the school directly the counselor can receive and fill orders and arrange for an interview between student and employer. He can take applications for social security cards of those who expect to work soon. He cooperates with the Illinois State Employment Service and reports all placements to the Placement Center. Mr. Barth is here to serve you!

COMES SPORTS - - - REPORTS

Comes Sports—Comes reports . . . and with these reports comes the news of all Kelvyn sports, both major and minor.

When we recall the season that our Panther eleven had we beam with delight at the outlook for next year. Kelvyn having previously suffered the pangs of lonesomeness in the cellar position, last year pulled out and scooted up to a position ranking with some of the top notch teams of the section. Rejuvenated by a number of young players drafted from the Frosh-Soph squad the Panther eleven showed new initiative. Ed Levin, captain of our '39-'40 team, was a great asset in finally getting the Kelvyn football machine rolling.

The Kelvyn Senior Basketeers, although crippled by the loss of two vets at graduation showed up to good advantage against tough West Section competition. Captain Batke, ably assisted by a squad composed mainly of underclassmen with the will to win, rounded out a fairly successful season, which more than lived up to the fondest expectation of their rooters. The Juniors, too, forged ahead with a team that did just as well, if not better, than the Seniors. So, for some time to come, Kelvyn will not be lost in the basketball shuffle.

While the basketeers were winning laurels with a hoop and a ball, "K. P.'s" tanksters were adding to the glory with win after win in the aquatic sports. Paced by breast-stroker Agger, free-styler Petrakovitz, and back-stroker Witt, the team was of such caliber that Coach Nelson and Manager Barmier had little trouble in putting winning combinations into the tank for the '39-'40 swimming season. So fine were the Kelvyn swimmers, that they placed in the City Junior Medley Meet. Although both Juniors and Seniors were exceptionally strong this year, the Juniors held a slight edge winning seven out of nine meets.

Throughout the winter bowling kept many of us busy. The boys' eight-cornered scramble of strikes and spares wound up with Captain Kirby's Nine Pins resting comfortably on a cushion of vanquished foes. The keglers started the season with eight teams, but graduation cut down this number. The Kelvyn Nine Pins were beaten in a surprise match by the Schurz quintet, who outplayed themselves to beat out our boys in the sectional quarter-finals. The fairer sex, who also started with eight teams had just as much fun as the boys. They came out on top in their local pin ball league, and were the North Section champs. In the city championship meet, Kelvyn's girl keglers were defeated despite the battle they put up.

"In spring a young man's fancy turns to——." At Kelvyn in spring, a young man's fancy turns toward baseball, the All-American Sport. Although the majority of veterans were graduated, Coach Brownstein uncovered hidden talent in his annual tryouts, and the team turned out to be a better one than was anticipated.

With coming of spring, tennis came into the limelight. Coach Nelson had quite a bit of difficulty in selecting this year's team as last year's City-Champions had all graduated with but one exception, Vic Filippini. At this writing it is too early to make any predictions. Another championship would be too much to hope for, though in the pre-season matches our "Don Budes" have done quite well.

All credit to Coaches Brownstein and Nelson for their fine work in developing such fair-playing, fighting teams, and to each and every one of the athletes for the fine work done and cooperation involved.

HOW THEY DID IT

by DOROTHY JENSEN

Your reporter reached nearly 200 alumni in order to get a sampling of the kinds of work our high school graduates can obtain. The selections presented here were made on the bases of the variety of jobs and the methods these graduates used in getting them. We omitted several excellent careers for lack of space; likewise some fine comments on life at Kelvyn by alumni who became reminiscent on our questionnaire. Many of our foremost graduates are still in college and their progress will make a chronicle for some later day.

Otto Seidl, Jan. '38, one of those air-minded boys, fulfilled his ambition and joined the communication section of the Air Corps Technical School at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Illinois. He completed his course in radio operating and is now getting practical experience by doing radio work in the planes at March Field, California. To qualify for a position such as Otto's, a person must have had a high school education, have passed mental and physical tests, and be in perfect health. Physics and mathematics proved to be the most profitable subjects that he took at high school. Says Otto, "There's nothing like the army!" * * * No one can accuse Shirley Rosendal of resting on her laurels. Although she led the class of June 1937 with practically a straight "S" average, she followed her Kelvyn commercial training with a course at "Moser's". There she made an equally impressive record. The business college found her a place in the offices of General Mills Incorporated. Because the job was "general office work," Shirley returned to business college in the evenings just to keep in practice. Her persistence in training as well as ability soon won recognition. It wasn't many months before the proverbial chance for promotion arrived. Now she has reached that goal of all the girls up "301-305" way: a private secretary to "one of the finest men in the world." (!) * * * May we introduce you to one of our future lawyers, Edgar Plachek, Jan. '39. Edgar is working as a law clerk (you know—a beginner with big ambitions) and attends the Y. M. C. A. law school in the evenings.

Edgar insists that the subject he took in high school which has been of the most value to him is English. In his reply he advises: "Not only individuals desirous of becoming lawyers, but those entering any job must know how to read, speak, and write well." In case you should ever want to get out of the trouble you stir up, see Master Edgar Plachek. * * * Would you like to have your hair set competently? Then pay a visit to Jo's Beauty Salon, and ask for Miss Margaret Huse. Margaret, June '37, attended a school of beauty culture for a number of months. Then she was hired as a beautician. Her only regret is that she did not indulge in more social activities at Kelvyn. * * * Elaine Schaefer, June '35, has gained the position of secretary to the manager of the Sportsman's Floor at Field's. To make herself more fitted for the position Elaine studied comptometry at evening school. She tells us that the office in which she works is a meeting and stop-over place for many celebrities, who are interested in sports. Among her famous friends are Wayne King, Andy Devine, "Lum and Abner", George Petty (the man who draws for Esquire), Philip K. Wrigley, and Bob Becker. * * * Remember art-minded Richard Grossman? Dick, who left these fair portals in June '38, is on his way to becoming a true advertising artist. By this time he's probably sprouting long hair and sideburns. Any day young Grossman can be found at Chicago's Art Institute, where he's the mainstay(?) of the department of advertising. He's now up in the world—being an advanced second year student. * * * Now here's a young man, William Swanson, Jan. '38, who is an expert at stirring things up. Bill happened to be convenient when the York Golf Club needed a counter man. He also showed his hand at cooking—so-o-o—, when the chef left, Bill, who is able to talk himself into almost anything, got the job as chief cook and bottle washer. You can find him any day between seven a.m. and five p.m. throwing all kinds of good things together in the kitchens of the York Golf Club. * * * It is customary for the Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago to choose a number of graduates from Kelvyn to work as page girls or office boys. Eunice Ashley was one of the girls chosen in June '37. Eunice was also one of the selected few which the bank helped through a course at the American Institute of Banking. After further training at business college she was given a position as a stenographer in the bank where she is still working. * * * According to Ralph Karkow, June '38, one must be an able bowler in order to get a job. It was while bowling that Ralph met his present employer. Because of his ability at knocking the pins down, he was hired at the first opening in Underwriter's Laboratories. He has been working there ever since. Ralph says that football taught him many valuable things which he applies to his work. "It taught me to co-operate with my fellow workers, and put me in tip-top physical condition", he says. However, to obtain the position of electrical lab assistant or assistant photographer, a high school graduate must have a good knowledge of technical subjects and mechanical drawing,—as well as bowling and football! * * * The impulse that drove Elvida Guttelvik, June '37, to decide that she was going to be a nurse came as the result of an illness. While recuperating at the hospital and observing every gracious, helpful movement of the nurses caring for her, Elvida determined to be one of these "angels of mercy." She is now a senior student nurse at the Norwegian American and County hospitals. Elvida tells us that a study of the sciences and Latin are beneficial to the girl who plans to be a nurse. * * * Since his graduation in January '38, William Sorensen has reached the third highest position (plant manager) in the Multiprint Company. The general principles obtained in print shop, and the work he did in mechanical drawing at Kelvyn prove most beneficial to him in his present position. As for the future, William and another young man plan a partnership in a private business establishment. * * * Delores Bankhardt, January '39, a most unusual want-ad answerer, wrote to us: "After business college I answered want-ads and WANT-ADS! I guess I did everything 'cept stand on my head to attract attention—so finally I put my 'all' in a masterpiece and mailed it. Only one thing wrong with the letter I sent—I forgot to sign my name." Nevertheless Delores got the job, for she convinced the boss it was only a method of attracting attention. Delores is thankful for the impromptu speeches the English teachers made her deliver, for, as a result she has greater poise in her position as secretary-receptionist for the Advance Felt and Gasket Company. * * * We are proud to include in this group, Ade-Rolfe Floreen, January '37, a technician at the Goodman Theater. He is studying for one purpose—that of becoming a production manager. Not long after joining the theatre, Ade-Rolfe was made an assistant and after his second year he received a full scholarship. Later he was offered a summer position as head technician for the Berkshire playhouse at Stockbridge, Massachusetts. When asked about his studies at Kelvyn, he said that English and literature have been valuable to him, but that he would like the mechanical drawing background also. * * * Upon graduating from Kelvyn in January '37, John Hall, one of our technical students, entered Schurz Evening School and completed three and one-half years of Machine Drawing. One month after graduation he was hired by the Illinois Tool Works. He worked there for a year, and in September, 1937, started a course in Machine Tool Work at the Armour Institute of Technology. The instructor suggested that he apply for work at the National Metal Trades Association. He did, and a week later was sent to be interviewed at the Bell and Howell Company. Here he served a six-month probationary period and has signed a four-year contract as an apprentice. He is allowed to attend the Washburne Trade School one day a week, and receives a raise in salary every six weeks. "This position has good future possibilities," says die-maker Hall.

KELVYN LIFE

LITERARY STAFF

PRINT AND BUSINESS STAFF

Participation in one of the numerous staffs of Kelvyn Life, the school newspaper, provides valuable training for any member desiring to enter any phase of newspaper work. The students learn the importance of cooperation. Literary staff members are taught the essentials of good newspaper writing. Terms such as copy, morgue, dummy, deadline, headline, ears, etc., come into usage. Business staff members gain knowledge of keeping books, making receipts, and other duties, which may be used not only in the business department of a newspaper, but in any branch of commerce as well. Those who print the paper become proficient in the handling of printed materials. The typists increase their speed. The officials of each staff learn methods of organization. Practical experience is supplemented by the great enjoyment which any staff member derives from seeing the results of his work in print, read by more than 1000 readers weekly.

Those who deserve special merit for their untiring work on Kelvyn Life are: James Erdevig, literary editor-in-chief, and his assistants Frederick Hermann, Joe Hassil, Philip Izenman, and June Trachtenberg. The business staff was ably managed by June Willer and Junellis Koester. The head printer was Arthur Gjertsen, with Al Dvorin assisting him. Beatrice Matelse headed the typing corps, and Frederick Hermann was chairman of the Promotion Staff.

There is valuable training also for the student who participates in one of the yearbook staffs. Training in leadership is given; the student who can assume a responsibility and carry it out efficiently, direct others, and submit to his sponsor his completed work well done obtains experience that parallels many in the business and professional world. Cooperation is seen to be an important factor in dealing with others, while patience, good sportsmanship, and discrimination are developed in those who participate in the various phases of our work. Art students must carry out assignments as they would if actually at work and here helpful criticism is given to develop their talent; literary members receive intensive individual help and gain more thereby in improving their English than in class; business members must keep accurate accounts; while typists improve their work through criticism and close inspection. Many others gain experiences less easily defined. All who have helped in any way have received in self training more than they have given.

For these students "the cream of our crop" all Kelvyn is deeply grateful. Some of their names are scattered throughout this book, signed to their articles. A complete list of the others is too long; we picture most of them and can mention only some of those who have given so generously of their time. So . . . here's to Tania Morozoff, managing editor; to her able assistants, Walter Demme, Lorraine Hagedorn, Margaret Karkow, Odd Linnerud, Elayne Moore, and Arnold Thompson; to Dorothy Jensen, worthy literary editor; to Idell Diamond, Lyla Felkson, Philip Izenman, and Berkeley Slutzker—for their courage and poise in interviewing personnel managers; and to the capable sales staff managed by Lorraine Brzostko, Nellie Mae Hunicke, Ruth Jensen, Dorothy Koziarz, Ethel Lechner, and Mildred Mihills.

THE MIXED CHORUS

The Mixed Chorus of Kelvyn Park is a fairly new organization, but is increasing rapidly in city-wide importance. On various occasions such as commencements, assemblies, and festivals, the members have shown their fine ability as a group.

The Chorus is instructed by Mrs. Florence Love and under her supervision gave a splendid performance on April nineteenth when they worked with the Girls' Choral Club on the musical comedy, "Manhattan Magnates."

A large black and gold letter is given to students after four semesters of membership in the Mixed Chorus.

The Girls' Choral Club has been part of Kelvyn Park for several years. It has distinguished itself among other school choruses in the city-wide music festivals and has been privileged to appear on several radio broadcasts.

Many past graduates, because of belonging to our Choral Club, have realized the opportunities in the field of music and are taking advantage of this by continuing their study. Some of them have reached the point where they can teach others their knowledge of music, as in the case of Lenone Reeves and Shirley Peterson, former accompanists of the Choral Club. Marion Holmes, another former member, has been singing with Art Kassel's Orchestra for six years.

The Choral Club is also under the leadership of Mrs. Love, and it is through her efforts that the group has reached its present popularity.

ORCHESTRA AND BAND

Parents are now beginning to realize that instead of three R's in school, there should be four: readin', 'ritin', rithmetic, and Rhythm. They're discovering that musical training is necessary for the development of character, as it teaches cooperation, and cultivates a taste for beauty and the worth while things of life. Some of the most able executives of industry were professional musicians. Music is helpful to success because of its power of developing the character and mind.

Perhaps you've heard of the enjoyment that we one hundred twenty members get from playing in our orchestra and band, under the spirited direction of Miss Fischer. All have worked hard, and as a result we have a fine musical education, which will be of definite value in any field of music.

We may not get a job connected with music at all, but music does have its advantages. Graduates do not always lay their instruments aside but often continue playing by themselves or join a group of musicians for their own pleasure. Bob Haas (June '39) says that the experience of playing in our orchestra has been not only a source of earning money, but has also made several valuable contacts for him. The fact that he was gifted musically aided him in winning a scholarship at Northwestern University. Helen Ostrom (June '38) was a member of The Kryl Symphony in 1939, and traveled from coast to coast. She gives much of the credit of her success to Miss Fischer's training. John King and Doris Klein (both of Jan. '39) are continuing their study of music at college.

One qualification which both symphony and swing orchestra leaders demand, is to be able to "double", that is, to play more than one instrument. Libby Di Silvestro, our Concertmeister, plays the bass-viol as well as the violin, and, in addition, is able to play a melody on almost any other stringed instrument. Many know of Joe Hassil's ability at the keyboard, performing in his own rhythmic style, but fewer know that he is also a fine violinist. Joe Quateman prefers playing his trumpet to the other instruments that he "doubles" on, which consist largely of those belonging to the brass group.

Leslie Stewart, a famous music educator, says: "Self-played music is a treasure beyond price, a relaxation that will soothe and heal, stir and inspire. It puts a song in your heart."

KELVYN'S ASPIRATIONS

by RUTH GOODYEAR

Do you know what you are going to be? We wondered . . . and sent questionnaires to all students. If you are undecided, you are not alone because 939 said that they are not sure what the future holds for them. Of future occupations the largest group is represented by those who aspire to be typewriter-pounders. Kelvyn has some future baseball professionals, three morticians (undertakers to you), six butchers, an antique collector (junkman), a high and mighty G Man (garbage man), and even two future presidents!

The list below shows the tabulation of the survey that was taken. It shows how Kelvyn's students are distributed into the various occupations:

Actors and Actresses.....	7	Librarians	5
Air Stewardesses	9	Musicians	42
Artists	83	Nurses	71
Bacteriologists	10	Pharmacists	7

Aside from appearance, your MANNER is of extreme importance. The employer's first impression of you is often the one that determines if you'll do or not. Walk firmly up to the employer, and if you shake hands, don't cause him to feel that he is welcoming a limp, lifeless, disinterested person: grasp his hand and complete a firm handshake. Make him understand that you have a sincere desire for the job. Don't be the type whose manner says "I wanted to stay home and listen to Bing Crosby's recordings, but mother shoved me down to see you." There are so many eager for the job, you know. Courtesy is a very beneficial and impressive trait, so we advise you to become acquainted with Emily Post. Be alert at answering all questions presented to you; it makes the interviewer feel that you know what you're talking about (even if you don't).

Many firms conduct a strict health examination, and applicants who are found to have cavities or poor eyesight must have these defects taken care of before they are accepted. One large mail order house refuses to accept underweight applicants, so don't carry the diet fad too far, girls. Take care of your health: it's sure to pay!

Lastly, we present the importance of speech in relation to getting ahead. Do not believe that it is only dramatists, public speakers, and opera singers who have to worry about enunciation. It is your problem, too. Don't mumble so that you must be asked to repeat what you have said. It gives the impression

It is your problem, too. Don't mumble so that you must be asked to repeat what you have said. It gives the impression that you're not sure of your words and therefore swallow them in an attempt to hide this defect. Since gum chewing isn't going to help the clarity of your speech, you are advised to confine the operation of this popular fad to the privacy of your own home. (Then you can crack it, pull it out, or do anything your heart desires.)

If these helpful hints are followed, if you conduct yourself in such a fashion that the one who is interviewing you will write down on file "a man of seeming confidence, alertness, courtesy, and the desire to get ahead"—if you succeed in giving that impression, your future is one-half secure. Life has a formula and so has success. If you follow the formula very diligently, you will find that it was well worth your while. Let us, who represent the younger generation, show the world that we are not a group of unthinking, unconcerned men and women. Let's prove to them that we've found the path we wish to tread—and that we intend to stay on it!

A field that is of interest to many Kelvyn girls is that of nursing. Be sure that the school of nursing you choose is fully accredited by the state. You must be at least eighteen years of age and in good health. (Statements from your dentist and doctor are necessary.) The training period is three years. Some Chicago hospitals are affiliated with universities and grant credit toward a B. S. degree. If you plan to enter one of these you should be taking two years of mathematics, two years of language, and one year of chemistry. Other hospitals require only that the applicant be a high school graduate with a good scholastic record. The registered nurse with initiative and executive ability will find other fields of interest besides that of private duty. These include government service, public health, instruction, and institutional work.

The mechanical-minded boy who is interested in tool and die making should take mechanical drawing and machine shop in high school. After graduation he can enter a shop where he must serve a four year apprenticeship period (with a beginning salary of about fifteen dollars weekly) before becoming an experienced tool and die maker. A similar skilled trade is that of pattern making. For this field the study of woodshop and mechanical drawing are required. The work is interesting and clean. It may be better for the beginner to get his apprenticeship in a small shop where the work is varied and many processes are learned. A full-fledged pattern maker earns approximately $1.30 an hour with double pay for overtime.

High school graduates are hired by hotels to serve as bellhops, and sometimes as desk clerks or porters. Many hotel executives have reached their high positions after such humble beginnings.

In newspaper work, the only positions open to non-college trained applicants are those of copyboy and general typist or stenographer. Once again promotion depends upon the desire of the employee to obtain it, and concrete evidence of ability.

When you do get that job, don't sit back self-satisfied. Remember that there is never an end to learning. Continue to attend school evenings, and study everything possible in your field. If you advance with the times, your job will advance with you.

KNOWLEDGE

Come to the fountain of knowledge.
The precious nectar is free to all
Who seek its soothing waters.
The mind is a mass of changing foliage.
The eyes reflect a forest's edge,
Where the trees of thought grow tall.
A multitude of leaves recall
To the mind its heritage.
Knowledge will give a fullness
To life, not found elsewhere.
It will not pity and come in kindness,
Nor unbidden be. Dare
To find it first. Then seek happiness,
And gain success; for they, too, are not rare.
